

The Royal Society of Biology Research Dissemination Committee

Research Communication Newsletter

July 2019

Top story(ies)

Rationale for the Revisions Made to the Plan S Principles and Implementation Guidance

Principles and Implementation

Spotlight on open access

Building Bridges, Not Barriers: Wiley's Comment on Plan S

PRESS RELEASE: Researchers Respond to Revised Guidance for Plan S

Despite one-year delay Plan S may still be too rushed, warn researchers

Societies welcome Plan S delay

A one-year delay to the controversial open-access initiative Plan S has calmed some of the concerns held by learned societies in the UK.

Plan S and the Transformation of Scholarly Communication: Are We Missing the Woods?

Learned Societies, the key to realising an open access future?

Plan U: funders urged to mandate immediate preprint publication

Shifting towards open access journals will only achieve so much when review and editing processes take so long, scientists say

The gold rush: Why open access will boost publisher profits

Journal transparency rules to help scholars pick where to publish

Next step of Plan S will require publishers to release acceptance rates and review times

cOAlition S Appoints Jisc Expert to Accelerate Open Access

Open Access Monographs: Building Better Infrastructure

Research England awards £2.2m to project to improve and increase open access publishing

The future of scholarly books is open \(access\)

Internal Contradictions with Open Access Books

Plans for a new Open Access Book Network take shape

Publication policy and debate

How will the emerging generation of scholars transform scholarly communication?

Peer review is not just quality control, it is part of the social infrastructure of research

Guest Post: Do Authors Have Any Power Over Publishers?

Open and Equitable Scholarly Communication: An ACRL Research Agenda

Research intelligence: how to deal with the gruesome reviewer 2

'Reviewer 2' is blamed by many academics for much of the stress and anxiety of publication – but the fightback is under way

Journal articles 'should cost £300 to publish'

Calculation by open access campaigners questions supposedly unnecessary spending by publishers on lobbying, marketing and executive pay

The Robots are Writing: Will Machine-Generated Books Accelerate our Consumption of Scholarly Literature?

Paper rejected after plagiarism detector stumped by references

Editors say episode demonstrates need for humans to review work of software

International publishing

India culls hundreds more 'dubious' journals from government approved list

Publications on the updated white list will now be assessed for legitimacy and quality.

Publishers fail to stem tide of illicit ResearchGate uploads

Berlin-based academic network faces court action in US and Germany, and lost more than €12 million (£10.7 million) in 2017, accounts show

Springer Nature accelerates its transformative journey with the signing of landmark pure Open Access \(OA\) deal

Publication ethics

Reproducibility trial publishes two conclusions for one paper

The British Journal of Anaesthesia's unusual experiment is designed to broaden replicability efforts beyond just methods and results.

How to bring preprints to the charged field of medicine

MedRxiv launches with beefed up screening processes to allay concerns about risks of publishing unvetted clinical research.

Click here to unsubscribe from this publication

Or, manage your subscription to this and to other RSB publications by logging into mySociety and choosing 'My Subscriptions' under 'Me and the RSB'.

Royal Society of Biology
Science Policy Team
1 Naoroji Street
London
WC1X 0GB
policy@rsb.org.uk

Please note that any views or opinions presented in this email are solely those of the author and do not necessarily represent those of the Royal Society of Biology.

© Royal Society of Biology 2019. Registered Charity Number: 277981
1 Naoroji Street, London, WC1X 0GB